

REHMANNIA

Rehmannia contains a long list of beneficial components, including rehmanniosides and rehmaglutins. It is one of the most important adaptogenic herbs. It is commonly used to support the kidneys and adrenal glands.

Rehmannia supports the adrenals with production and metabolism of stress hormones and has shown to be a protectant of long term corticosteroid use. It has been used for regulating blood sugar levels, urinary tract function, and digestive support.

Rehmannia contains iridoid glycosides and other components that:

- Support adrenal gland and liver health
- Facilitate the body's normal response to occasional stress

- Promote a healthy response to environmental stress
- Support normal bowel function
- Encourage normal fluid elimination

Manufactured in a GMP certified facility.
